Dear Parents and Carers

Schooling for children of key workers
Parent response required by 9.00am Friday 20 March

Following my email last night to parents and carers, I would now like your help in obtaining further information which will help us to plan our provision for the next few weeks.

In the case of potentially vulnerable students (e.g. those with EHCPs, or an allocated social worker), staff from our Student Welfare Team are making direct contact with parents and carers. However, it would be valuable to know whether you believe you will need ongoing provision because you are a 'key worker'. The Government is yet to issue a clear list of key worker roles, but they have said these will include: NHS employees; Police; those essential to maintaining food supply (e.g. supermarket staff, delivery drivers, commercial food producers).

Of course, not all key workers will require schooling for their children, in which case they are asked to contribute to 'social distancing' by making their own arrangements.

If you are a key worker parent who needs to send your child to school, we would be pleased to accommodate this from Monday 23 March. To enable us to plan for this, please click here to inform us of your intentions by 9.00am tomorrow, Friday 20 March.

Yours sincerely
